

"Like a subway-scholar Ignatius J. Reilly [A Confederacy of Dunces], adjunct instructor Cyrus Duffleman channels the rage of the academic underclass."

—Justin Bauer, books columnist, Philadelphia City Paper

a novel

Fight for Your Long Day

"[A]n original, witty, uncompromising exposé of how we live now ... This is a brilliant first novel."
—Joan Mellen, author of A Farewell to Justice

"[A]n adjunct college teacher's version of One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich." —Eric Thurschwell, comic writer and former adjunct instructor

"One can almost smell the cheesesteaks and hear the mumbled epithets whispered behind the scenes in the City of Brotherly Love."
—Andrew Breslin, author of Mother's Milk

"[R]equired reading for anyone considering a career in academia."
—Iain Levison, author of A Working Stiff's Manifesto

Fight for Your Long Day

Alex Kudera

Alex Kudera

Fiction | October 2010 | $14.95
Advance Review Copy from Uncorrected Proofs | Not for Sale
Publicity: Tolly Moseley, PR by the Book, (512) 501-4399 x708, tolly@prbythebook.com

